The Private World of Elizabeth Taylor

ABOVE: The climbing rose 'Cécile Brunner' is trained over an arbor; the property was landscaped by Campion Walker Garden Design. Pink cestrum and gold breath of heaven are planted around the bench; 'Elizabeth Taylor,' a shocking-pink hybrid tea rose introduced in 1985, flourishes nearby. RIGHT: A grass path leads to the tree-shaded koi pond.

OPPOSITE, CLOCKWISE FROM TOP LEFT: Red and white snapdragons, pink-flowered abutilon, and spotted dead nettle give the effect of a colorful English herbaceous border. A teak table and chairs are sheltered in a thicket of giant-timber bamboo. Nephew Christopher Taylor tiled the pool and designed the distinctive shell-shaped fountain; the chair cushions are made of a Sunbrella fabric.
